NAVY WRECKS 16 JAP SHIPS AND 4 BASES

U. S. Today Reveals Details of Daring Raids on Mid-Pacific Isles

41 ENEMY PLANES DESTROYED, REPORT

Americans Lose Only Five Planes, Government Announces

BY EUGENE BURNS

PEARL HARBOR, T. H., Feb. 13.—United States naval officers gave details today of their first major offensive of the war, the devastating Feb. 1 raid which wiped out important Japanese bases in mid-Pacific.

Justifiably but prosaically they related how units of the Pacific fleet blasted bases in the Marshall and Gilbert islands, flanking U. S. supply routes to Australia and New Zealand. (The navy department in Washington announced details of the attack last night.)

Four military airplanes were destroyed, 16 enemy ships—including a converted aircraft carrier, a destroyer, a cruiser and two large submarines—were sunk, and two modern military villages were leveled.

Forty-one Japanese planes, including four-engine bombers, were blasted on the ground and from the sky. American planes losses were given as only five.

On U. S. Supply Route
(The islands, some 2,000 miles southwest of Hawaii and about 800 miles from Australia, lie across the most direct route of supply between the United States and the western Pacific war theater. The navy communiqué Feb. 1 announcing the attack said many

Dick Fisher To Be Guest At Community Fete Monday

Coach Paul Brown of O. S. U. To Attend Banquet Honoring Athlete, Now Headed For Navy

Richard "Sonny" Fisher, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Fisher of 66 West Salem st., Columbiana, will be honored at a community-wide banquet at 6:30 p. m. Monday in the Columbiana High school auditorium in the presence of a group of famous guests and hundreds of his friends.

Among those expected to attend the affair, sponsored by the Kiwanis and Rotary clubs, American Legion and Chamber of Commerce, are Paul Brown, OSU grid coach; Harold Olsen, Buckeye cage mentor; Jimmy Wland, Jack Crawford and George Lynn, who has been elected to lead the OSU eleven next season.

While in high school Dick, known to the sport fans of the surrounding towns as the "Columbiana Clipper," earned athletic letters in football, basketball and track. He is doubtless the most outstanding athlete in Columbiana High's history.

On the gridiron he was a pillar of power as he led the Clippers to a pair of Tri-County league championships. On the basketball court, his amazing ability to hit the hoop from all angles brought many cage victories to the Red and White. In track he specialized in the dashes and the shot put and was a member of Columbiana's Class B state champion track squad in 1937. Teamed with the Enright twins and Anglemeyer, he helped Columbiana to cop 880 yard relay honors

"Unbelievable Carelessness" Of British In Malaya Is Hit

Americans Home From Singapore Area Said They Were Not Told of Evacuation Plans

(By Associated Press)
JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 13.—Twenty-eight Americans, the first to reach here from Singapore since the siege there, arrived today with critical remarks about what they termed the "unbelievable carelessness" in the British defense of Malaya.

Elliott H. Simpson, secretary of an American rubber importing firm, who was trapped when the British withdrew from Penang, said he would go to Washington to report to the state department concerning British "negligence."

Simpson said "the British ordered the evacuation of British women and children from Penang but never notified the Americans to leave."

U. S. Consul Robert Streeter was among those not advised, he said.

He said he and other Americans heard about the withdrawal by accident and managed to flee the city of 42,000, four days after British nationals left.

Simpson said Penang, a vital tin and rubber port, was defended by only 500 soldiers—most of them natives. The city had no anti-aircraft guns, he asserted, decorated the streets at night with signs reading "this country belongs to us natives—keep the white men out."

Simpson said the British left 7,000 tons of rubber and 5,000 tons of tin.

SINGAPORE'S CITY STANDS AS FOE GAINS

Although Its Days Are Apparently Numbered, Union Jack Still Flies

JAPS HAVE SEIZED RESERVOIR AREAS

Enemy Modifies Claims, Says He's 2 Miles From City's Center

LONDON, Feb. 13.—The Union Jack waved through another of its evidently numbered days over Singapore city today but Japanese shock forces, alternating between inching crawls and swift, almost suicidal rushing from cover to cover, had reached suburban Tanglin, little more than two miles from the heart of the metropolis.

That was the position on the southern sector of the 14-mile battle line, the closest threat to Singapore city, but on the central part of the contracting front the Japanese appeared to have seized most of the city's sources of water—the central reservoirs.

Haven't Won City
But the enemy had not yet won Singapore city, though most of the island was in his hands.

This much was evident in the admissions contained in the last two Singapore communiqués, the latest being timed at 5 p. m. (6 a. m. Eastern War Time).

Singapore announced that the Japanese had stepped up their air and artillery pressure with frequent shelling, high level, low level and dive-bombing attacks on forward positions and the city itself. Large formations of Japanese planes assailed Singapore directly.

"Obviously the Japanese are not yet in Singapore town yet or they would not be bombing or shelling it," a British commentator said. "The positions mentioned in the communiqué indicate some slight withdrawals by our forces since yesterday."

Japs Modify Claims
The Japanese, unofficially backing down from enthusiastic claims that Singapore was captured and all but mopped up, admitted their spearhead was still but two miles from the heart of the city and reported that a pincer movement was under way against the big naval base on the northern shore.

A Domei (Japanese news agency) correspondent at the front on the 206-square mile island, once Britain's Gibraltar of the Orient, admitted the British imperial garrison had made the battle of Singapore a fight to the death—that the defenders were "determined to die in order to live up to the prestige of the British empire."

German Battleships Escape In Flight Through Channel

The 26,000-ton battleships Gneisenau (top) and Scharnhorst (bottom) figured in the fiercest channel fighting since the evacuation of Dunkirk when they attempted to pass through the Strait of Dover under a heavy aerial escort in a dash from Brest, France, where they had been bottled up for almost a year. The cross on map indicates where the main assault occurred. Arrows point to Heligoland Bight where the ships succeeded in heading after downing 42 British aircraft, biggest single loss of any naval-air encounter of the war.

THREE NAZI SHIPS REACH HOME WATERS

Ran Gantlet Past Britain's Tightly Guarded Front Door

42 PLANES OF RAF KNOCKED OUT OF AIR

Serious Effect On Atlantic Naval Power Seen In Bold Feat

(By Associated Press)
LONDON, Feb. 13.—Germany's audacity in parading three of her most valuable ships of war past Britain's tightly guarded front door shocked these islands today.

There was insistent clamor to know how a second-rate navy could do that against his majesty's sea guardians and the press began shouting for scalp.

By now the 26,000-ton German battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the 10,000-ton Prinz Eugen probably have reached the haven of German waters in the Heligoland bight after running the length of the English channel with an escort which slipped past the narrow corridor's defenders and knocked 42 British planes out of the sky.

Fear Consequences
Not only the blow to Britain's air and naval prestige, in which the empire's pride is highest, but also its consequences disturbed the British.

With the British fleet involved in the Mediterranean and far Pacific, the Germans now have earned an opportunity to join those powerful ships to their other battle forces and, possibly, heavily weight the scales of naval power in the Atlantic.

Much censure fell on the air branch—the RAF and the fleet air arm—for it was a virtual umbrella of air protection stemming out in relays from German bases on the French coast which saw the flotilla safely through the channel, a centuries-old symbol of the British Isles' invulnerability.

"British sea power has received the most insolent challenge made against it for years," declared the Evening Standard.

"No German fleet ever sailed through the straits of the channel in the last war. Indeed, no enemy fleet has dared to do it for more than a century. The sea was ours."

Hurled Fistful of "Whys?"

It hurled a fistful of "whys?" at the RAF and the navy, asking whether the airforce was wasting its money on huge bombers instead of buying torpedo planes and whether airpower was effectively coordinated with the other services as it has shown to be in Japan and Germany.

"The urgent need is for reform at the top," said the Evening News, lumping the battle of the channel with the bad news from the Orient and Libya, "for the formation of a new and smaller war cabinet and a fresh and more determined grapple with our tremendous problems."

"No doubt we shall be given the usual soothing explanations, but the miscalculations have piled up too ominously to be dismissed with a flourish of words... a grand inquest by the prime minister into the whole matter of framing and control of our war strategy is vital to us."

LONDON, Feb. 13.—Three of Germany's mightiest warships, in daring defiance of Britain's air and sea power, have made a sensational escape from their French drydock prison, racing to freedom through the English channel under the fire of British planes, ships and shore guns.

It was a gamble that risked freedom for the 26,000-ton battleships Scharnhorst and Gneisenau and the 10,000-ton cruiser, Prinz Eugen.

ACCEPTED ON FAITH

No secret is made of the fact Admiral Thomas C. Hart, commander of the Asiatic fleet when Japan attacked Pearl Harbor and recently made chief of all United Nations naval forces in the Far East, is to be replaced. But the fact does not explain itself. The announcement says Admiral Hart has been relieved of command at his own request because of ill health.

It is entirely possible that all there is to it. But it is not entirely probable. The same suspicion that makes replacement of German generals because of ill health sound phony makes replacement of a highly placed United States naval officer at a critical juncture in the war sound phony.

The official explanation must be accepted on faith. The people will continue to wonder what else may have happened. They will continue to wonder about almost everything in connection with their battle fleet in the Pacific area. It will be no comfort to suspect that probably many of the mysteries which perplex them and can't be revealed lest the enemy gain information long ago ceased to be mysteries to the enemy.

STILL A JOB TO DO

Fery Fiorello finally has left the office of civilian defense to the administrative merities of Mrs. Roosevelt and James M. Landis, the law expert. It must be assumed in the absence of information to the contrary that everything else about OCD will remain in status quo—which is the hard way of saying it will stay in the mess that already surrounds it.

But now that the critics have had their squawk and the do-gooders and morale uplifters have said their nicker's worth, the fact remains there's still a whole lot of job to do in the name of OCD. To the extent that Washington has anything to offer, except more confusion, it should be getting busy.

Actually, the job is being done after a fashion. It would have been done even if there had been no CCD, no Fery Fiorello, no dancers, no movie actors, no M. S. Roosevelt, no uproar. But for better or worse, there had to be another federal agency, complete with payroll and parasites. If it wants to redeem itself, it will waste no time whatever telling the folks cut in the sticks how to save their skins if the bombers come. The folk dancing and basket weaving can be dragged in later, perhaps.

THE PRINCIPLE INVOLVED

In the hubbaloob over pensions for congressmen, one point has been slighted. The mistake lay not in congressmen voting themselves pensions at this time, which seems to be the common impression, but in congressmen having the crust to think about pensions at all.

Pensions for elected, policy-making officials in a representative democracy are as out of place as wings on a jackass. They run contrary to the whole idea of legislative representatives responsible to the people for their tenure of office. There's no room in legislatures for pensioners; there are too many of them there now on one pretext or another.

This does not mean that a congressman should not be entitled to some retirement income in the twilight years. Any insurance man will be able to fix that up in a half hour or so, the same way the congressmen's constituents get their twilight years fixed up, unless they've been able to land a civil service job. But heaven help the United States if things ever reach the point where any congressman getting a little gray at the temples and slow on the bounce can yawn and say to himself, "Shucks, it's time to retire on my government pension." Why, a threat to vote against the guy at the next congressional election would lose all its punch. Maybe he wouldn't get re-elected... so what?

LET'S CALL IT SABOTAGE

With that charity which has become characteristic of government spokesmen when given a choice between sabotage and accidents of unexplained origin, the near-destruction of the Normandie is being called an accident.

It would be much kinder to call it sabotage. One of the world's most valuable pieces of marine property, having passed into the hands of the United States by a circumstance of war, has been made useless for probably years to come. It cannot be replaced. It can be repaired only at heavy expense. If all the saboteurs in the western hemisphere had been invited aboard and instructed to do their worst, they couldn't have done a more complete job than the United States government has managed to do in the name of an accident.

The fire on the Normandie would have been a sock in the teeth at any time. But coming on top of the Japanese demonstration that Singapore, Britain's theoretic point of greatest resistance, is about to become another Pearl Harbor for lack of foresight and preparedness, the "accident" to the vessel suggests strongly that officials who don't avert accidents before they happen are among the deadliest enemies of the United Nations in World War II.

ON ABRAHAM LINCOLN'S BIRTHDAY

Things in Washington when Abraham Lincoln became master of the White House were worse than they ever had been before, and Mr. Lincoln didn't help them any. His greatness did not lie in the field of administration.

In fact, his greatness was a hard thing to determine. It didn't emerge till some years after he was dead, and there still are a lot of Americans who short when his name is mentioned.

Nevertheless, in the crucible of history where men's ultimate worth is tested, Mr. Lincoln has proved to be one of the world's great characters. He was a failure as a "man on horseback," which was what the people wanted; he bit his lip at the thought of death; he was kicked around grievously by his contemporaries; he couldn't orate for sour apples and he managed to give the impression sometimes of being somewhat bawdy, but he was a great man.

His countrymen humbly propose a toast to him and the Christianity he tried to practice and which made him great. He is their answer to the challenge of the Huns and Samurai who never will be able to understand what was remarkable about Abraham Lincoln.

THE STARS SAY:

For Saturday, February 14

THIS DAY'S planetary configurations show many exceptional opportunities for expression of unusual versatility and creative skill, either in the realm of business, art, culture, in all forms of professional skills as well as in vital ambitions to wield power and prestige, in high places, in whatever avenue chosen. It should be expansive, and productive but there should be tact and grace in dealing with those in authority. It would not do to be overbearing and contentious. Also shun schemers.

Those whose birthday it is may be assured excellent opportunity for achieving a high place in the realm of heart's desire, whether that be in business, finance, political or diplomatic life, in the professions, as well as in society, the arts or in humanitarian service. It should be a time for pushing to cherished goals under the expansive, generous, fruitful and creative stimulus of major planets. But there is need for finesse and discretion in all approaches, whether in social, political or public contacts. There is also need for wariness against schemes and subtle pitfalls or betrayals.

A child born on this day should be capable and ambitious in many directions and while noble, expansive and generous it should not hesitate to resort to expediency for attaining its desires. It may have marked social or cultural aspirations.

STATISTICS BLAST JOKE ON WEDLOCK

Cold Facts Show Married People Live Longer

BY LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

I hate to be in on the death of a joke, and there is nothing that kills a good joke as quickly as the sober-sided demonstration that it is literally true. The reason the "Why does a chicken cross the road?" joke is going to be eternally good of course, its a little stale to you, but that crawler of two on the floor is going to get a big kick out of it about four years from now) is that nobody is ever going to know whether the chicken really crosses the road to get on the other side or whether he has some ulterior mystical motive in his ornithological psychology.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

But one joke is dead. The Metropolitan Life Insurance company, with cold, clammy logic, has proved that the old one about why married people live longer—"they don't" it only seems longer—is not a joke but is literally true.

Among males in the essentially productive ages of life, the death rate among the single or widowed is about double that among the married, according to statistics for New York State, exclusive of New York City, for the years 1929 to 1931.

Recorded Rates

At the age of forty, the actual mathematically recorded rates were 6 per 1,000 among the married, and 12 per 1,000 among the single and 13 among the widowed.

Single women and widows are a little less resistant than their married colleagues. At the age of forty, married women have a death rate of 5 per 1,000 as against 6 among single and 7 among widows.

Of course, these figures are open to a certain amount of interpretation. Widows and widowers are, by the very nature of their situation, older than married people and therefore the death rate is higher.

The same does not, however, apply to the single people, but other factors enter in. Alcoholism, for instance, particularly among males, if far more prevalent among the single and widowed than among married people. The actual figures show that 1½ per cent of all deaths at the ages of twenty to forty-four for the single and 1 per cent for the widowed were attributed to alcoholism, while for the married, there was only a little more than ½ of 1 per cent.

Accidents More Frequent

Accidents appear to happen more often to people living alone than to those who have family attachments. Single and widowed people are more inclined to take serious risks. The death rate among widowed males between the ages of twenty and forty-four was due to accidents in 22 per cent of all deaths. This is an astonishing figure. Tuberculosis and accident taken together account for almost one-half of the deaths in this group.

Suicide is also higher among the single and widowed, which would seem to indicate that the responsibility of a family tends to strengthen the will to live even when seemingly insurmountable problems present themselves.

Another group of diseases which indicate that there is some difference between the married and single state is influenza and pneumonia. Single and widowed males between forty-five and seventy-four have a rate of 7, while the same group among the married have a rate of 6. That females do not show quite the marked difference might be interpreted as indicating that the married men have someone to look after them and flutter over them and make them change from wet to dry clothes and keep them from exposure.

Questions and Answers

M. S.: "If one is X-rayed and fluoroscoped and the appendix is not seen or does not fill with barium, does this indicate that there is trouble in this region or that there is no trouble there?"

Answer: In my opinion the X-ray had no value whatever in the diagnosis of any kind of appendicitis. It was only by accident that a French doctor once saw the appendix visualized by the X-ray. I think it was a great tragedy that he did see it, because it has led to condemning many normal appendices, and to useless surgery.

School Grant Improbable, Goshen Officials Informed

DAMASCUS, Feb. 13.—A member of the state department of education at Columbus, accompanied by a federal representative, met recently with Sup. C. G. Long of Goshen township schools and H. O. Stanley, clerk of the board of education, to discuss an appropriation for the erection of a new school building at Goshen Center and an addition to the High school building here.

It seems improbable the grant will be secured now as the increase in population in this district is not great enough to warrant the expenditure. The increasing spending for defense is also against the project.

Plan Guessing Contest

A guessing contest will be a feature of the next meeting of the Women's Bible class March 10. Members will bring youthful photos of themselves for the contest.

The hostesses will be Mrs. L. S. Strawn and Mrs. Carrie Kelly. The group was entertained at the home of Mrs. E. E. Jones Tuesday with Mrs. L. B. Bingham conducting the devotionals. Roll call was answered with reminiscences, poems and quotation.

A dinner was served at noon by Mrs. Jones with Mrs. M. W. Strawn and Mrs. Homer Toban assisting hostesses.

DICK FISHER TO BE FETED AT BANQUET

Columbiana Civic Groups Sponsoring Dinner for Star Athlete

Aside from his sparkling athletics, he still found time to study and maintained a high scholastic average. In this, his senior year, he was enrolled in the College of Education but dropped out of school to enlist in the navy. He has been on call for some time and is expected to leave before the end of this month.

Fisher Still Modest
His athletic ability and the fame he received from it never made Fisher "cocky" or "swell-headed" and this trait has won the praise of his friends and admirers. His friends in Columbiana before he embarked to Ohio State to receive a higher education, are still his friends regardless of his fame.

Tickets for the event went fast and at the present, it's said, there is not a stray ducat to be found in the thriving town. Every man who ever had anything to do with sending "Sonny" to the top in the athletic world will be present in punier high he was tutored by Waldo Ward, since called by the U. S. army. In high school his coaches were Jimmy Wiant, present assistant football and head cage mentor at Niles High school, and Merle Atkins, now grid coach at North Lima. At college he was coached by Francis Schmidt and Paul Brown. All are expected to be present, except Ward.

Other guests will include the star's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Fisher; and Dave Stewart, grid mentor at Sharon. During the course of the program, Paul Brown will show movies of several of Ohio State's football plays during the past season. Toastmaster for the reception dinner will be Dr. C. W. Dewalt, often said to be Columbiana's No. 1 sports fan. G. Charles Fisher is general chairman.

The balcony of the auditorium will be opened at the end of the dinner at approximately 7:30 to give about 150 more well-wishers a chance to participate in the event.

The dinner is scheduled for 6:30 p. m. and ticket holders are asked to be there on time.

Crushed by Coal Scoop
CINCINNATI, Feb. 13.—Charles Devoll, 19, of North Bend, was killed last night when a loaded five-ton coal scoop smashed him against a coal barge at an Ohio river wharf.

Girl Scout Plan Successful, Stresses Fun And Adventure

"The success of the Girl Scout movement can be attributed to the fact that it's program emphasizes the elements of fun and adventure in ordinary, everyday activities."

That is the opinion of Miss Oleda Schrottky, national field worker of the Girl Scouts, who will address mothers, troop committee, council members and leaders at the Presbyterian church Monday afternoon.

Open to Anyone
The informal meeting at which the national scout advisor will speak is open to anyone interested in Girl Scouting in Salem and surrounding towns. The meeting will be held at 2 p. m. in the church assembly room.

A tea will be given at the church immediately following her talk. A dinner for those who wish to discuss phases of the scout program with the speaker, will be held at the Lape hotel at 6 p. m. Monday. Reservations should be made with Mrs. Eleanor Gibson, city scout director.

A survey of Girl Scout activities here for the month of January illustrates the varied educational and recreational program which the 11 troops enjoy.

Troop 1 of the Methodist church is engaged in a Red Cross first aid course with Miss Nellie Lewis as instructor. The girls meet every Monday at 7 p. m. in the church. Troop 2 of the church, of which Mrs. Raymond Overturf and Mrs. R. J. Kuhl are leaders, has been recently organized and will begin regular scout work soon.

Troop 3 of St. Paul's Catholic church is making plans for an initiation ceremony and party and has been making costume jewelry and Girl Scout candleholders at their meetings.

Troop 4 is making new uniforms, while completing plans for initiation service and program at a party for their mothers.

Learning To Knit
Learning to knit is occupying the members of Troop 5, who are starting to make an afghan as they learn. Besides sewing for the Red Cross, Troop 6 members are working on their handiwork's badges. Troop 7 celebrated its third anniversary at a party recently and has included in their work for national defense the hemming of 50 first aid bandages. They have enjoyed swimming at the Y. M. C. A. in Warren and will shortly begin a Red Cross health and hygiene course.

Troop 8 knitting at the meetings, has completed an afghan which will be given to someone or some institution which can make use of it. The girls are doing extensive homemaking, arts, crafts and community life work. Troop 9, second class scouts, will have a party to celebrate their distinction and Troop 11, Brownie Scouts, composed of younger girls, is learning to knit and has begun an afghan for the Red Cross.

THE FLICKERING TORCH By William West Tomlinson

In his first book, "TIME OUT TO LIVE," Mr. Tomlinson, whose early days Salem is proud to claim, created a design for individual fulfillment. Now he turns his pen to the broader subject of our Nation and its struggle to fulfill a traditional purpose in our stricken world. "THE FLICKERING TORCH" is a penetrating appraisal of what we in America call freedom. What is its present status in our land? What are we to do about the hazards which now threaten to stifle its flame? Tomlinson's appraisal leads to a conception of patriotism which has within it the power to transform a flickering torch into a new flame of hope and human progress. Per copy $1.50

British Nation Is Shocked As Nazi Warships Escape

to rove the seas again as lethal raiders of Britain's commerce, against their loss as the price of failure.

Black Friday For Britain

And the British ruefully acknowledged this black Friday that, so far at least, the Germans had engineered a shrewd and skillful coup under the muzzles of Britain's home defenders.

From Brest to Heligoland is approximately 700 miles. Apparently the ships had negotiated nearly half this distance when they first were engaged at 11 a. m. yesterday. For five hours planes were in constant action over the enemy armada.

By now, the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen probably have reached the security of Heligoland bight, racing home at 20 knots ahead of the slower ships which guarded them through the channel.

It was from the sky, however, that the German warships' greatest protection came, not only from concealing snow and fog but, perhaps even more, from swarms of Nazi fighter planes, shuttling out in relays from the French coast to keep protection constantly over them.

Britons' dismay that their rule of home waters could be so daringly and successfully challenged was voiced swiftly in demands for explanations which may cause new difficulties for Prime Minister Churchill's government on top of the bad news from the Pacific and Mediterranean.

Found By Spitfires

The first word of the German warships' dash came from two spitfires on reconnaissance. They eluded 12 Messerschmitts to race home and spread the alarm.

Quickly, a flight of torpedo planes guarded by 50 fighters was winging toward the French coast and from then on the British sped out their own air forces to the attack.

Germany won't for she shook loose the three ships which had lain in refuge at Brest for months as stationary targets for the RAF's bombs. Her cost was 18 fighter planes and the warships were damaged by bomb, shell or torpedo—how gravely remains to be learned.

The British failed because they lost 42 planes and suffered some casualties in their destroyers without battling the long, narrow channel and delivering a blow in home waters which would have been their greatest naval triumph of the war.

But the full story still is to be told of the great land, sea and air battle which started after the German warships nosed out of the Nazi-occupied French harbor at the western mouth of the channel and headed eastward toward the Dover strait, the open water of the North sea and the safety of a home port.

The preliminary admiralty-air ministry communique said today: "When last sighted, the enemy had become separated and were making for ports in the Heligoland bight."

"Further reports from our forces are awaited."

Wait For Weather

Evidently having waited cautiously for a day when snow and sleet shrouded the strait, the Nazis were ready yesterday to take their risk in daylight, giving their great ships the protection also of naval forces and air fighters.

From the time they were met by British air and then naval units until they scattered at the east end of the channel, a furious battle was waged with everything on both sides from little minesweepers to the great batteries on opposite shores.

It was a battle fought in misty confusion, under leaden skies which often blotted out the fierce duel of big and little ships, waving skimming torpedo planes and wheeling, diving bombers and fighters.

Although the shores of France are visible in clear weather from the English cliffs across Dover strait, the joint communique said the weather was so thick the enemy ships were not once spotted from this shore.

It said the bomber command reported hits on all three of the fleeing Nazi warships.

At least six torpedo hits were believed to have been scored but there was no indication of their effectiveness.

The British sea and air commands in their first account said the enemy squadron was heavily escorted by fighter aircraft.

It continued:

"Visibility at this time varied from three to five miles . . . on receipt of this report, coastal craft of the Dover naval command immediately were sent out to attack, together with swordfish aircraft of the fleet air arm, strongly escorted by RAF fighters."

"Attacks by both swordfish and coastal aircraft were pressed close to home in the face of intense fire from all vessels and opposition by enemy fighters."

At Least One Hit

"Reports indicate the swordfish scored at least one hit on one of the enemy heavy ships and one on the motor torpedo boats also claimed a possible hit, but owing to the intense barrage and the heavy smoke screen put up by the enemy it was impossible to see the results."

six swordfish aircraft are missing.

"During this time the Dover defenses opened fire at extreme range which was replied to by enemy shore batteries."

RAF planes made repeated attacks, the communique went on, and, although low clouds obscured the results, preliminary coastal command reports credit three torpedo hits to Beaufort planes and the bomber command "said that each of the main enemy units was hit by bombs."

"The attacks were pressed home with the greatest determination in the face of heavy anti-aircraft fire and strong fighter opposition, which resulted in the loss of 20 of our bombers . . . and 16 fighters."

"Fifteen enemy fighters were destroyed by our fighter escort and at least three more by the bombers themselves."

At 3:34 p. m.—when the nautical hare-and-hound chase had been thrashing through the channel for more than four and one-half hours—British destroyers sighted the quarry and, the communique said, "went into the attack in the face of heavy bombing . . . and also heavy gunfire from all the enemy's surface ships."

Casualties Not Heavy

"Our destroyers took advantage of a rain squall to press the attacks home . . . there is reason to believe that at least one torpedo hit was obtained. Casualties on our destroyers was not heavy."

One question Britons were sure to ask their war leaders was how the Scharnhorst, Gneisenau and Prinz Eugen could put to sea in trim for a perilous challenge to Britain's sea might after having sat through more than 100 air attacks on Brest of which the presumably were the specific targets of 66. The last was Wednesday—just a day before they sailed forth.

Authoritative sources pointed out that they were small targets in a large space and that the harbor of Brest was singularly defensible against aerial torpedo attacks which caused such havoc to the Italian fleet at Taranto.

There has been doubt among informed observers for some time that the ships ever had been critically damaged.

Hitler took such great chances to get the ships out of Brest. The consensus was that he hoped to use the hard-fitting surface ships on the Atlantic supply lanes.

A second possibility, that the three warships are to be taken circuitously to the Mediterranean for an expected major drive there, also was given some credence.

A third theory was that Germany is projecting an invasion attempt against Britain, but this was viewed as less plausible than the others.

perishable food. The system consists of three walk-in units, one for meat, one for vegetables and one for dairy products, and a reach-in unit in the special diet kitchen for salads, desserts, etc. A kitchen cooling system supplies each floor and the dining room with cold drinking water.

The preparation of raw food is done in the vegetable preparation room. From there it goes into the main kitchen, which is equipped with cooking units consisting of a commercial gas range, gas broiler and griddle, a pressure steam cooker, a complete baker's unit including an electric oven and an electric mixer with meat grinder and vegetable slicer.

From the main kitchen the food goes into the serving room which is equipped with steam table where the food is kept hot during the serving period. There the food is placed on patients' trays and sent to the floors on an electric dumb-waiter. The personnel are served in the dining room from the same point.

In the central dish washing room the soiled dishes are washed and sterilized in a modern dish-washing machine.

The kitchens are equipped throughout with stainless steel tables and sinks. The special diet kitchen is completely equipped for the preparation of special diets.

The dining rooms are attractive with walls painted white, bright colored drapes and a red asphalt tile floor.

AWAITING COPY OF RESERVOIR PLANS

City Engineer to Present
Program To State
Health Board

City Engineer F. S. Barckhoff is awaiting a copy of the resolution which city council adopted at its Feb. 3 meeting before he can present the city's plans for a 3,000,000-gallon water reservoir to the state board of health for approval.

The health department's O. K. is necessary before the program can be submitted to the government in seeking a WPA grant to help finance the project.

Councilmen verbally approved the resolution, but Barckhoff said yesterday that the thing had never been placed on paper, apparently through misunderstanding.

In addition to the 3,000,000-gallon concrete storage basin, south of the city, plans are to erect a quarter-million gallon overhead tank in an eastern part of town.

The estimated cost of the reservoir and connecting mains has been placed at $55,674, and the overhead tank, $26,452.

Here and There -:- About Town

No Shortage For Him

Most folks are meeting the sugar rationing program with a philosophical attitude, and some with downright ingenuity.

Into an E. State st. restaurant this morning walked a worker for his coffee.

"One or two lumps?" asked the man back of the counter.

"Three!" firmly responded the customer.

"But look here," remonstrated the waiter, "we can't do that. The limit's two."

"O. K.," said the customer, "I'll supply the third one," and, reaching into a pocket, pulled out the extra cube of sugar.

Even a Boy Scout couldn't have been better prepared.

Other guests at the luncheon included Joseph Moran, county scout executive; Russell Gibbs, city chairman; and Judge Joel H. Sharp, who has been active in scout work here for years.

James Farrell and H. F. Wykoff were in charge of the program.

A discussion of congressional candidates for the Aug. 11 primaries will be held at that time.

Plans also were made for a near-future meeting here when county election plans will be outlined.

LOZIER, JR.-LANE MOVE INTO SECOND IN MEN'S DOUBLES

Dean Barber Fires 671 In Singles To Take Over
Third Place

Top teams in the doubles and singles of the city handicap tournament held their positions as the result of last night's bowling on the Grate alleys, but a few crept into the money in both events.

The team of Fred Lane and George Lozier, Jr., now occupies second place by virtue of an 1172 score, aided by a handicap of 147, posted last night.

Paul Frank and Bob Stacey went into 13th place on 1115, handicap 42; Lynn Ferguson and Albert Wright hit 1109, handicap 51; for 14th, and Pete Bonnell and Red White took 15th on 1102, handicap 3.

Dean Barber took advantage of an 84 handicap to roll 671, good for third place in the singles to date, and Wilbur Calladine of Leontonia hit 644, on games of 233, 200 and 211. He had no handicap, but his total put him into fifth place.

Fred Girard of Washingtonville posted 593, handicap 60, for 11th place and McMaisters of the Hoffman alleys had a 597, handicap 33, for 13th place.

CHICAGO BECOMES GOLF CAPITAL OF NATION FOR 1942

Summer's three Top-Notch
Meets Scheduled For Windy City

By GRAHAM HOVEY
International News Service Sports Writer

CHICAGO, Feb.—America's entry into war and the subsequent cancellation of major events by the United States Golf association had combined today to make Chicago the golf capital of the nation, so far as the 1942 summer tournament season is concerned.

Over the period of one month, or to be exact, from June 18 to July 19, the top-flight golfers of the land will fire away for at least $20,000 in prize money at three major Chicago tournaments, two of which, for all practical purposes, will be the National Open and the National Amateur, under new names.

What corresponds to the National Open—annually golf's biggest show—will be called the Hale America and will be run off by the U. S. G. A. Open this year, and will be run off June 18 to 21, probably at the Ridgemoor Country club, on the Northwest side of town. Prize money probably will approximate $5,000, and proceeds will go for war relief purposes.

Details About the Same

Details of the Hale America meet will be identical with those of the cancelled National Open, the only exception being that the winner's name will not be added to that select group of golfers who have copped an Open championship. The same system of district and sectional trials will be conducted under auspices of the U. S. G. A.

Hopefuls will tee off May 25 on 60 different golf courses over the nation in the district tests, and sectional trials will be conducted at 12 sites during the first week in June. A field numbering between 60 and 80 will start off in quest of the Hale America championship June 18. The tournament, which will be managed by the U. S. G. A. championship committee, was established to dramatize America's civilian defense program, as well as to raise war relief funds.

As big as the Hale America affair will be, however, it will be of secondary importance so far as the two factors of prize money and crowds are concerned to the $15,000 Tam O'Shanter Open and the All-American tournaments, which will be held concurrently during the week of July 13 to 19 at the Tam O'Shanter Country club.

The Tam O'Shanter Open was held for the first time last year, with $11,500 offered in prize money. The largest crowd in the history of American golf tournaments jammed the course to watch Byron Nelson edge out Len Dodson and Ben Hogan to win the Tam O'Shanter crown, and George S. May, president of the club, expects a gallery of 100,000 for the double attraction this year.

"Reasonable Facsimile"

May announced the all-American Amateur event only a few hours after the U. S. G. A. had cancelled the National Open, the National Amateur, the National Public Links, and the National Women's Championship tournaments. The All-American will be at least a reasonable facsimile of the National Amateur in an America at war.

According to May's present plans, the All-American Amateur field will hold qualifying rounds Monday and Tuesday, July 13 and 14, and will swing into match play on Wednesday, when the Tam O'Shanter Open contestants play an 18-hole qualifying round. The tournaments will run concurrently Thursday and Friday.

On Saturday, the two finalists in the All-American amateur will battle it out for the championship over the 36-hole route, while the 85 low-scorers in the Tam O'Shanter Open play their third 18-hole medal play round. On Sunday, the Open will be terminated with an 18-hole medal play round.

May plans to make it possible for amateurs desiring to compete in both tournaments to count their match play scores as their Open tournament medal play tallies until the windup of the Amateur meet.

"Dollar golf" for the spectators at the Tam O'Shanter double feature will prevail just as it did for the Open tournament last year. It is because of his insistence on the $1 admission price that May is predicting a crowd of 100,000.

Whether he gets that many customers or not, it is a sure thing that plenty of golfing fans will see plenty of golf in the 1942 nation's golf capital during that 32-day period from June 18, when the Hale America Open gets underway, to July 19, when the last putt is scheduled to be dropped in the Tam O'Shanter show.

The committee in charge to fill in the figure.

"THURSDAY'S CHILD" by VERA BROWN

FROM THE OLD RHYME: "THURSDAY'S CHILD HAS FAR TO GO"

CHAPTER TWENTY-TWO

For the next week Sonny was in seventh heaven furnishing her apartment. Up and down Fifth Avenue and over on Madison she went. She spent all day in the shops, and then each evening she would rush over to the apartment to look at what had been delivered.

The caretaker found her a maid, Octavia, from Harlem, who worshipped Sonny from the start. Together they arranged the new furniture to what they considered its best advantage.

Sonny refused to see anybody until her apartment was finished. Dick told her via phone that he had not been able to reach Kirk, but Sonny stood firm on her plans. "You must come to my house-warming, Dick. I'll let you know the date."

Al Corey, the orchestra leader she had met with Alex, telephoned her twice before she moved from the hotel. She invited him and his whole band to her housewarming, and he accepted with alacrity, adding: "Make it for a Monday night. We're off then."

"Next Monday," she promised.

The big day arrived. Together she and Octavia prepared a buffet supper, and kept busy all day getting everything ready. The guests were to come at five for cocktails. Sonny had told Al to have his band bring their girls. Alex was coming, and so was Dick.

Promptly at five Sonny was ready in a long white frock; one Ann had chosen for their vacation. She looked lovely. Restless, she sat down at the window to wait, but she could not look at the view across the river toward Jersey. She had eyes for nothing but her apartment. It was what she had always wanted.

Dick was about to leave his office to get ready for the party when Carol Hollister arrived unexpectedly.

"What are you doing in town?"

"Looking for somebody to take me to dinner," she said. "I had to come in to the dentist and I must stay over."

Dick hesitated.

"You're tied up? I was afraid of that."

Dick explained: "To tell you the truth, Sonny's giving a housewarming. She has a new apartment. Why don't you come along?"

Carol answered on an impulse: "I'd love it. Sure Sonny wouldn't mind?"

"I'll call her," Dick turned back to his desk.

"Let me talk to her. I like the girl, you know."

When Carol spoke, Sonny was thrilled: "Please, please come. I'm going to be short of girls, and besides, I'd be so glad to have you see the apartment. Hurry. Nobody's here yet and I'm just crazy sitting here waiting."

"I hope it's air-conditioned," Carol said when she hung up. "The heat's terrific."

Dick said: "We won't stay late, but it might be fun. She's invited Corey and his whole band!"

"Swell!" exclaimed Carol.

Half an hour later they arrived at Sonny's apartment. Carol and Dick will never forget their entrance. Sonny met them at the door, kissed Carol enthusiastically, and led them into the large living room with: "Here it is!"

There was a moment of awful silence. Never in her life had Carol seen so much merchandise in one room. There were deep chairs, a Spanish shawl over the piano, tapestries on the wall, pictures, vases, wicker furniture at the window, deep rugs, gadgets, tall lamps, table lamps, yards of draperies. It was a nightmare.

Carol finally recovered her voice. "It's marvelous, darling." Tactfully she went straight to the wide windows, saying: "I had forgotten how lovely the Hudson is!"

Dick added his conservative praise. He felt sorry for Sonny.

"How about a drink?" he asked.

"Mix your own," Sonny said. Octavia has the bar in the dinette. I want to show Carol the bedroom."

Carol braced herself. The bedroom door opened on an orchid room, an orchid rug, a gold bed, lace pillows, lace dolls, gold lace lamps, gold gauze curtains with lavender over-drapes. The chaise longue was piled high with more lace pillows and dolls. It was all so gaudy.

Carol suddenly felt guilty. It was their fault. They should have given Sonny a helping hand. Poor kid! She turned to look into the girl's radiant face, and kissed her cheek impulsively: "You're a darling, Leslie! I hope you'll be ever so happy here."

Tears came to Sonny's eyes. "That's the nicest thing anybody ever said to me."

"I mean it from the bottom of my heart!"

Just then the band and their girls arrived in full force. Sonny went out to meet them, Carol, watching, was proud of her for she was a nice hostess.

The instruments were piled around the handsome Spanish shawl. Sonny, radiant, pinned on her frock the orchids which Corey had brought. Dick caught Carol's eye and raised his glass in a silent toast to the red-haired girl and her first party.

Corey was determined to make the affair go. From the moment the music started, it was plain that the party was to be a success. One of the girls sang, she had a lovely voice.

Then Alex arrived.

Octavia came in, now and then, to beam on them all, and went back to frying chicken in the kitchen.

Sonny threw the rug back and there was dancing for awhile. It was all quite informal, amusing and gay. Sonny, scarlet-cheeked and happy, was everywhere at once. Carol was having the time of her life with Corey. The din of music and laughter was ear-splitting.

Finally, a policeman came to protest against the noise. Al knew him. "Meet the best tenor on the force!" Al shouted, and somebody made a great crash with cymbals. Of course, the officer had to sing "Wild Irish Rose" with Al at the piano. Two other policemen came to warn and remained to play. Everybody was having a grand time.

Dick was the first to leave the party.

Carol refused to go with him so Al promised to see her home. The cops said goodnight shortly after, but Al and his crowd stayed on.

Dawn was breaking over the Hudson when Octavia served bacon and eggs. It was after eight o'clock when the party finally broke up. The last goodbyes were said and Sonny and Octavia were left alone with the debris. Some of her new crystal glasses were broken. Sonny dropped into the nearest chair.

"Oh, my! That, Octavia, was a party!"

"Yes Ma'am, and they all had a good time. But now you get some sleep."

Sonny obeyed and went into her orchid bedroom of which she was so proud. Sweeping the dolls, pillows and lace spread off the ornate bed, she climbed into it and fell into a deep contented sleep.

But like all grand parties, there was the morning after. For Sonny it began when the telephone rang long after noon. It was one of the newspapers. They understood Mrs. Thomas Hollister had entertained last night. More details were requested. Sonny gave the reporter a few. After she hung up she felt a vague alarm. Suppose something appeared in the papers of which Kirk disapproved?

Some of the evening papers published brief accounts of her party. It might have been worse, Sonny thought.

Another Destroyer Launched

Constructed in record time, the U. S. S. Herndon, a destroyer, hits the water during launching ceremonies at the Norfolk, Va., navy yard. Keel of the new warship was laid less than six months ago.

"Don't let it get you, kid!" Corey said kindly. It's tough but such is fame.

"Will he tell anybody?"

"Let's hope not. But forget it. What if he does? Can't you ride out in the country with me and a whole band?"
